HEADQUARTERS BULLETIN Gen. Kountz's Movements-Hearty Reception in New York, Brooklyn, Trenton and Wilmington.

Toledo, O., Jan. 17, 1885. Commander-in-Chief Kountz left here on the 11th on his Eastern tour, and on the following day reached New York. In the evening, accompanied by Ass't Adj't-Gen. Geo. B. Squires, of the Department of New York, he visited Farragut Post, No. 75, and was accorded an enthusiastic welcome by the comrades. Gen. Kountz's arrival was a great and most agreeable surprise to the Post, many of the comrades having for the first time the pleasure of meeting the "Drummer Boy of Shiloh." After the installation Gen. Kountz made a short address, which was fittingly responded to by Post Commander Robert Heilferty, at the close of which a varied musical and literary entertainment followed, and the evening's proceedings closed with a dance, which was kept up until an early hour Tuesday morning. The installation of officers of Post 327, of

mander-in-Chief drew together a very large andience of both ladies and gentlemen. The program was one of unusual excellence, and consisted of songs, recitations, speeches, etc. The singing of Miss Zippora Monteith and Mrs. Helen Ludington was one of the principal features of the evening, and the audience showed its appreciation by repeated encores. The musical part of the program was under the direction of Comrade Henry Camp, who showed Kountz made an eloquent address on "The Grand Army of the Republic." Department his Department, and Commander I. M. Hedges, of New York, made a short address on the Department over which he presides. An address | DAKOTA. was also made by Gen. Stewart L. Death of Schuyler Colfax. Hon. Schuyler Colfax died of heart disease on the morning of the 13th inst., at the Omaho depot in Mankato, Minn. It was a bitterly cold morning, the thermometer being 30 degrees below zero, and it is supposed a rapid walk of three-fourths of a mile, and the subsequent heat in the depot, brought on the fatal attack. Mr. Colfax was born in New York City March 23, 1823, some months after the death of his father. After 10 years of widowhood, Mrs. Colfax remarried, and shortly afterwards the family moved to New Carlisle, Ind., where Schuyler became a clerk in a grocery store. In 1841 his stepfather, Mr. Matthews, was elected County Auditor, and Schuyler was appointed his deputy and commenced the study of law. He had also the position as Senate reporter for the Indianapolis State Journal, after holding which for two years he founded the St. Joseph Valley Register. In politics the paper supported the Whig party, and in 1848 he was sent as a delegate to the Whig National Convention at Philadelphia. In 1850 he first became prominent as an auti-slavery man, voting and speaking in the Indiana State Constitutional Convention against the clause prohibiting free colored persons from entering the State. In 1851 he was a candidate for Congress, and was defeated by a very small majority, although his district was strongly Democratic. Two years later he was elected to Congress by the newly-formed Republican party, and was re-elected for six successive terms. In 1856 he was one of Mr. Fremont's strongest supporters for the Presidency, and during the canvass his speech against slavery and the aggressions of the slaveholding aristocracy attracted a great deal of attention, and

A PROTESTANT CONVERTED TO CATHOLICITY BY HER RIBLE AND PRAYER BOOK. was circulated to the extent of more than 500,000 copies. In 1863 he was elected Speaker of the Thirty-eighth Congress, and was reelected in 1865, and again in 1867. In 1868 he was nominated for Vice-President with Gen. Grant as candidate for President. In 1872 he was again a candidate for re-nomination as Vice-President, but was defeated by Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts. In 1873 Mr. Colfax was implicated in the Credit-Mobilier, and was repeatedly examined by investigating commit- and of England and the Continent in regard tees, and an effort was made to impeach him, but in Feb., 1873, the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives submitted a report declaring that there was no ground for Mr. Colfax's impeachment, inasmuch as the alleged offense of bribe-taking, if committed at all, had been committed before he became Vice-President. After his reltirement in 1573 he took no active part in politics, and for the last few years occupied himself with lecturing.

The funeral of Mr. Colfax took place at South Bend, Ind., on Saturday last.

It contains a report of the National Organization of the Corps at Denver, July 25 and 26, 1883, and the proceedings of the Second National Convention at Minneapolis last July. FARNELL'S FOLLY. By J. T. Trowbridge. Published by Lee & Shepard, Boston. Mr. Trowbridge is the leader of what may be called the healthy, robust school of American fiction. His characters are all flesh-and-blood people, and generally very much alive. The scene of "Farnell's Folly" is Waybrook, a little town in New York. Farnell has built a sumptuous house, and fails before its completion, and so 'lets in' all his friends and ac- 6 pr. gloves..... quaintances. His daughter Julia comes to his rescue, and by teaching school provides for her father's wants. Marian Fenway is the village belle. Her father began life as a blacksmith in of the within account, Waybrook, and having forged a good hayfork, starts a factory and is successful. Mrs. Fenway, Marian's mother, is a silly, passionate woman. Marian loves Will Rayburn, who is the hero of the romance. Adolphus Daskill, of Buffalo, is the gay Lothario of the story. He has apparent wealth. He buys Farnell's Folly, cuts out Will, and persuaded by her mother, Marian marries Daskill. A Mrs. Chilgrove, who has been Daskill's mistress, now appears. Daskill forces Marian to take for companion Mrs. Chilgrove. His rascality is discovered, and Marian flies from the house, gets lost in a snow storm, and is rescued by her former lover, Will.

When she dies Will marries Julia Farnell. YOUNG FOLKS' IDEAS. By "Uncle Lawrence," anthor of "Young Folks' Whys and Where-fores," etc. Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co.,

Philadelphia. In this charming volume "Uncle Lawrence interweaves into his pretty story a large amount of valuable information on a great number of subjects; and so skillfully does he do this, that our young folks, while reading a very interesting narrative, are at the same time becoming acquainted with a wide range of scientific and other matters of value. The author writes, in a manner readily understood by the juvenile mind, on printing, photography, the manufacture of paper, gold and silver mining, and a host of other interesting matters. The book is handsomely bound and profusely illustrated. MATTER OF LASTE, A Novel, By George

H. Ricard. Published by White, Stokes & Allen, New York. For sale by Brentano, Washington. A very bright, well-written little story in the Henry James style. The narrative begins in Hartford, but the heroine is soon taken to Venice, where she suffers herself to be wooed and won by an Italian doctor, in pursuance of a scheme of his to replenish the family coffers. Her Hartford lover, who has followed her to Venice, is heartbroken, and after a series of adventures brings up in the hospital at Milan, prostrated by a fever. She decides to go to his bedside in spite of the orders of her Italian husband. She knows now that she really loved the Hartford man all the time, and she tells him so. He thereupon gets well, returns to Hartford, and waits for the Italian doctor to die, which he finally does, and the lovers are at last united.

Messrs, Charles Scribner's Sons will shortly publish the narrative of the Greely Relief Expedition, by its commander, Capt. Schley, and Prof. J. Russell Soley, of the Navy Department, the custodian of the official records. The book is entitled "The Rescue of Greely," and in its introductory portion reviews the sending out of his original expedition, and the two expeditions first sent in search of him-in the Neptune in 1882, and the Proteus and Yan-PROCEEDINGS OF THE OHIO ASSOCIATION | tic in 1883. The main narrative is then taken up, and the absorbing story of the relief is told; the voyage of the Thetis and Bear; the race with the whalers across Melville Bay, and the skillful management by which its dangers were escaped; finally the finding and the rescue of the starving men. The volume will be illustrated from the series of admirable photographs made by the expedition-some of them among the finest Arctic scenes ever thus

An Interesting Experiment.

The German War Department is trying a new experiment at Munster, Westphalia. A special company, under a separate command, has been selected from the regiment of soldiers stationed there, for the purpose of testing the new diet to be given the men during a fortnight, within which time they are to go fully equipped for six hours daily through a regular field-service exercise. The food consists chiefly of preserves and material such as is least exposed to deterioration in a campaign, and may in case of need be carried by the men in their haversacks. Strict watch is kept that none of the men procure other food outside, in order to test both their own endurance and physical condition, and at the same time the nutritious qualities of the provisions.
